

—25—

ABSTRACT

A transporter and storage and lift unit, particular suited for tires includes an elongated vehicle frame capable of traveling over the underlying terrain includes a plurality of elongated object supports. Pairs of parallelogram linkages are provided for each of the object supports so as to mount them for 5 movement between transport and/or storage positions overlying the frame and positions substantially engaging the underlying terrain for the addition of or removal of tire to or from the supports.